SM: I-I [UI].

CHS: The Government is creating the problem.

SM: It's because its owned by corporate America.

CHS: Oh, I agree, but that is the Government, okay. Our politicians are sold out to them.

SM: Poor Hillary Clinton is owned lock, stock and barrel by Goldman Sachs, period-period, again and by uh, fracking. You know she's a big proponent of fracking.

CHS: Oh, I know it's disgusting.

SM: It-it the whole, but see they all bought into that. Oh, well we gotta do a transition from coal through natural gas to renewables. Well, you can't trust industry to do anything.

CHS: Well, you-you're-they're correct. That there has to be a transition. The problem is [OV]--

SM: That the Republicans...

CHS: --the transition occurs at corporate profit time frame.

SM: Sure, exactly. [UI] [OV]--

CHS: It doesn't occur through any basis of science.

SM: --figured that out don't you? The quarterly report drives our culture [OV].

CHS: Of course it does [OV].

SM: How insane is that?

CHS: Of course, it's [OV]...

SM: You only look three months ahead. Think about that. A culture is uh-uh-uh is vast as you, is really driven by three months, what-what profits are made every three months. That's what drives...

CHS: That's why—that's why other country's look at us as just complete fools.

SM: We're totally insane.

CHS: We're insane, yes we are.
